In a nutshell

Formal awards are becoming increasingly important for those entering the teaching sector in Wales. These flexible courses will give you a recognised qualification to work in the post compulsory education and training sector (adult education).

This course is for...

- ...you're working as a trainer and wish to gain a formal qualification
- ...you'd like to teach others and share your expertise in a particular subject
- ...you want to work in adult education, not primary or secondary

Course content

If you have not previously completed a degree, you will study the certificate route.

COURSE INFORMATION LEAFLET

If you are a graduate then the post graduate certificate in education route is for you.

You will learn about the whole process of preparing, delivering and evaluating lessons, from writing a lesson plan to methods of assessment. You will also have the opportunity to share good practice and develop your teaching skills.

Assessment

You'll be continually assessed through a mixture of written assignments and presentations. In addition, students will be observed teaching on at least four separate occasions per year. There are no formal exams.

Entry Requirements

You'll need a Level 3 qualification in the subject that you'd like. For a Professional Certificate in Education, applicants should hold qualifications to at least undergraduate level in the subject they wish to teach.

All applicants must be in, or secure, a teaching/training placement for each year of studying; evidence of 50 hours of teaching and 20 hours observation are required.

As part of the interview process, you will be expected to deliver a five minute presentation.

You could go on to study a MA in Leadership and Management (PCET) or (FE), or other MA education and linked pathways/courses.

Successful completion qualifies you to teach in professional non-compulsory education in your chosen subject.
