What will I be doing?

The programme includes individual creative exploration, industry mentoring, live project experiences and placements. The course is a visually innovative, industry relevant program of study, with an emphasis on traditional and digital skills including a real focus on employability. The core principles of drawing are to be applied to a growing and dynamic contemporary illustration market with a focus on both traditional and digital forms of illustration practice. The course will concentrate on preparing you for entering a fast paced and competitive industry, teaching you the essential skills on how to market yourself, be digitally present and content driven.

The course allows you to develop your creativity further in class and via extracurricular activities. Briefs will be varied to include creating work that will be submittable to professional level open competitions and enable you to engage with real life clients. In addition to regular in class activities, there will be guest speakers and industry standard illustrators performing their specialism, communicating relevant information about industry standard production of work and conducting portfolio reviews. Practical teaching is delivered through a combination of workshops, lectures and tutorials, along with gallery visits, exhibitions, field trips and an international trip. The course will blend traditional techniques such as drawing and printmaking, with state-of-the-art digital illustration techniques whilst giving you the opportunity to develop your portfolio in line with your chosen creative career.
