

VTCT Diploma in Hair and Media Make-Up Level 2

In a nutshell

Makeup artists design and apply makeup to deliver a sense of drama whether in a film, theatre, photographic or social media platform. The complexity and type of concept will vary depending on the production and character but good makeup artists can execute a wide range of looks across different genres.

Working as a makeup artist, there are various progression routes. The freelance nature of the profession means that you may move between trainee makeup assistant, makeup artist, chief makeup artist and designer roles depending on your experience.

This course is for you if...

- ... You have aspirations of becoming a makeup artist
- ... You have a special interest in theatre or film
- ... You're creative and hardworking

What will I be doing?

As a makeup artist, you are responsible for applying makeup and styling hair for people appearing in films, television programmes, photo shoots or live events like concerts, plays or fashion shows. Hairdressing plays a big part of this course and the industry employs multi-talented individuals who are able to apply makeup and style hair in one shoot.

Your job would be to create the look that the person needs for the type of production or event.
